ANTALCIDAS

Great Spartan statesman. Son of LEON.
Sent by his gov't. to TIRIBAZUS, the Persian satrap at Sardis (393BC) to break up the understanding between Athens and Persia. He succeeded, but agreed that Sparta should recognize Persian supremacy over Greek cities of Asia minor. This displeased the Persian King ARTAXERXES and TIRIBAZUS was recalled; the vessel (3898C). Encouraged by this fact AUTALCIDAS was sent again as a Spartan Admiral to fight again with the Persian King. Received an interview and carried his point, then breaking the blockade of the Athenians and pushing them out from the Aegean Sea. He compelled the reluctant peace known as the "Peace of AUTALCIDAS", its final ratification taking place at Sparta (386BC). Persian support was held until after the Battle of LEUCTRA, when he lost them and is said to have returned himself to death in disappointment
